Councilman Davison presented a resolution providing that the civil engineer be instructed to establish a new grade for Broadway from the Southern Indiana Railroad to the corporation line. Also that a grade be given for Ninth street from Ewing to Bill streets. The resolution further provided that the intersection of Ninth and Broadway be lowered two feet from the previous grade. Carried.

Councilman Davison presented a resolution providing that LeRoy Miller be re-elected school trustee for three years from August 1, 1910. Carried.

The ordinance providing that all transient bill posters shall have a city license before they can distribute posters, samples or other advertising matter and providing penalty for violation was read for third time and adopted.

The ordinance that all peddlers and auctioneers shall be required to first secure a license before they can sell goods or cry sales in the city was placed upon third reading and adopted.

The franchise to the Seymour Public Service Company was placed upon third reading. Several minor changes were made in the franchise, before it was adopted. The name was changed from C. E. Layton and associates to the corporate name, The Seymour Public Service Company. Upon motion of Councilman Mills the councilmen voted to change the minimum rate for residence lighting from $1.00 per month to 75 cents per month. It was believed by some that the former provision was greater than it should be, and the grantees readily consented that the minimum be reduced. After the above changes were made the franchise was adopted by an unanimous vote.

W. R. Day stated that the committee of the Military Jubilee had requested him to ask the council to furnish light for the celebration in July. The committee stated they would furnish the lights. Last year the light cost about $240. In several animated speeches the councilmen stated that they were opposed to furnishing such lights. Later, arrangements may be made to light the city park during the summer months.

The civil engineer presented the assessment roll against the property holders for the improvement of Third street between Vine and Bill streets. The total cost of the improvement amounted to $358.50, or 51 3-14 cents per front foot.

Upon motion of councilmen the assessment roll was referred to the board of public works which was called together by Chairman Davison immediately after adjournment of council.

The board of public works voted to accept the assessment as arranged by civil engineer and to hear remonstrances against same Thursday June 23, at 8:30 p. m.

A communication from several property holders in block 19, Butler's addition, stated that they did not want to move their fences and buildings from the alley as established until a permanent line was known.

The council adjourned about 9:45.

WORK PROGRESSING.

Excavation Begun For New School Building.

The work of tearing away the debris of the old high school building was completed a few days ago and the work of excavating for the new building is proceeding rapidly. Some of the school yard was filled up two or three feet deep with lime and plaster and brick and now another foot or two of dirt from the basement is being put over all of this. The building when completed will stand in the center of a knoll with the ground sloping away gradually in every direction. This work has been planned carefully and Mr. Isgrigg and son seem to be executing it to perfection. Persons who have examined the plans and know the reputation of Isgrigg & Son for capability and fair and honest work say that Seymour will have a school building when completed that will be "A1" and second to none in this part of the state.

Gentlemen!

You are invited to stop at our place and see our up-to-date line of all-wool goods for your spring and summer suits. Also gents' furnishing goods. We do all kinds of cleaning, pressing etc. Ladies' and gents' garments A. Sciarra, Tailor and Haberdasher, 14 E. Second street.

FOOT CRUSHED BY RAKE.

George Skinner Meets with Painful Accident While Working in Field.

George Skinner, the sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Skinner, of near Brownstown, who met with a very painful accident while at work in the field last Wednesday, is improving, and it is believed he will suffer no serious results. He was driving a team to a rake, when in some manner it caught his foot, which was severely crushed.

His foot is in such a condition that the attending physician believed that it should be encased in a plaster cast, which will be arranged tomorrow. It will require some time before the boy will be able to walk again.

PLANT DISMANTLED.

Home Telephone Company Ships Entire Equipment to Louisville.

The entire equipment of the Seymour Home Telephone Company has been taken down and shipped to the central office of the company at Louisville. As soon as the exchange was closed, April 1, the company sent linemen here who began at once to dismantle the plant and prepare it for shipment. Although no statement was made as to what disposition would be made of the equipment, it is understood that it will be repaired and installed in other cities where the company operates systems.

All the poles and wires in the city have been taken down and what could not be used in other places was sold to junk dealers here. The company owned about five hundred telephones, and these can be used elsewhere. The switchboard and other equipment were in fair condition and, with some repairs, can be used again.

JOINT WORM.

Insect Working in Wheat Fields Over Southern Indiana.

That the joint worm, which was discovered working havoc in wheat fields in Jackson county, is prevalent in southern, central and a portion of northern Indiana, is the statement of dealers who fear that the Hoosier wheat crop this year will be below standard in quality and size. Local grain dealers have received reports from many different localities relative to falling wheat, due to the ravages of the joint worm and other pests. The worm's appearance was noted by some farmers two years ago. Last year there was an increase in the damage done, and this year the damage promises to be greater than ever.

Y. P. S. E. U. Convention.

The pastor of the United Brethren church at Medora and a large number of other delegates were in the city this morning en route home from attending the eighteenth annual convention of the Young People's Social Christian Endeavor Union of the United Brethren church, which has been in session at Odon for the past three days. They report a good attendance and a convention which produced unusually satisfactory results.

Adopt New Members.

The Rebekah lodge of this city adopted a class of six new members Thursday evening. Eleven visitors from Crothersville were present to witness the work.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

Contractors Have a Large Amount of Work for the Summer.

There will be much building in this city this summer, and the contractors expect one of the best years they have ever experienced. A number of the improvements which are now in progress are given:

The carpenters of moving the work rapidly on the new two-story residence of Ed Massman, on West Bruce street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gillman are moving into their new residence on South Chestnut street this week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Guernsey have just had a new concrete curb and gutter put down on the west side of their residence at Second and Poplar streets, and have also put down some concrete walks in the yard and made other improvements.

E. S. Jordan is having the brick residence town away, which he recently purchased at the southeastern corner of the Reed-Jourdan addition, and will probably have another new modern residence built there during the year.

The residence of Theodore Groub, on West Second street, is being repainted.

The plasterers will complete their work today on the new four-room residence of Peter Kirsh, in the Third ward. The house will be ready to move into in about two weeks.

The residence of Mr. Oeberrig, six miles southwest of Seymour, will be ready for the plasterers by some time next week.

Fred Abele is erecting a beautiful bungalow at the southeast corner of Fourth and Vine streets. The frame is already up and the building will soon be enclosed. The old residence, which stood on the same site, was moved to Glenlawn.

Homer Goens is erecting a four-room residence for his own use at the northwest corner of Fifth and Blish streets. The frame work of the building is already up.

Balsor Kirsch is erecting a new room to his residence at the northeast corner of Brown and Vine streets.

Fred Rust, of near Cortland, will build a new seven-room residence after harvest.

Ben Hoene has just completed some improvements on his residence, near Waymansville.

William H. Rebber is erecting a new seven-room, two-story residence on East Second street. Work is now in progress on the basement and the concrete foundation.

Everything should be ready to break ground for the new city hospital before the close of this month.

With all these improvements, and many more planned, besides the new $65,000 light plant, which is to be begun right away, there will be a large amount of work to do in and about Seymour during the summer. Then there are the improvements which are to be made at Brownstown in connection with the county court house, the jail and the poor farm. In the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars will be spent in improvements in Jackson county this year, and more than $200,000 will be spent in Seymour and Brownstown alone.

Whitmer's Liver-Kidney Medicine is a guaranteed remedy. Your money back if it fails. j11d

PUBLICITY BUREAU.

Democrats Plan to Expend Large Sums for State News Service.

Plans have been made by the Democratic of Indiana for the establishment of a news bureau, which will serve the Democratic press of the state during the campaign. The news bureau was discussed at a conference between Democratic editors of the state and members of a sub-committee appointed by the Democratic state committee.

The details of the plan are yet to be worked out. An experienced political writer has been placed at the head of the bureau at a salary, it is said, of $60 a week, and will be allowed a corps of assistants. It is estimated that it will require fully $3,000 to conduct the bureau from now until the close of the campaign. It is expected that the state committee will be willing to give $1,000 or more, the remainder to be contributed by the editors of the Democratic papers. It is the plan to supply the daily papers with a daily letter, giving the political news of the day from a Democratic standpoint. The weekly papers are to be furnished with a weekly letter. The matter is to be furnished by wire, by mail and in plate form.

Funeral Services.

The funeral services of the late S. H. Huffman were held Thursday afternoon at the family residence on North Poplar street. The services were conducted by the Rev. F. M. Huckleberry, of this city, assisted by the Rev. Jas. Omelvena, of the Presbyterian church of this city; Rev. A. Ogle and Rev. T. C. Smith, of Indianapolis. Rev. Mr. Ogle was formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of Seymour. The funeral was largely attended by the relatives and friends of the deceased, who was well known, not only here, but throughout the state.

Funeral.

The funeral of Wesley Lind, who died at his home a few miles north-east of Seymour, on Tuesday evening, occurred at the residence yesterday, conducted by the Rev. H. C. Pierson, after which the remains were taken to Jonesville for interment.

Pineapples, cucumbers, tomatoes, cauliflower, asparagus, green beans and new peas, at Model Grocery.

I am no scab. I am D. A. Roaney, the champion grass-cutter of this town. Give you satisfaction. No kick on by work—you may kick on my price. Respectfully, DAVID A. ROANEY.

WHO IS THE BEST LOVER.

Reasons Why Some People in England Think the Englishman Is.

For long it has been supposed that Englishmen do not make good lovers. It is said they are too plain, straightforward and downright. They lack, it has been suggested, the finesse and skill of foreign men in wooing, the London Mirror says.

But the statement of Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, the famous American novelist, that if she married again she would marry an Englishman for choice, since he is far the most interesting type, raises the question anew.

Inquiries go to show that, in the opinion of some people at any rate, not only is the Englishman a better lover than the American man, but better even than the Frenchman, the Spaniard or the Austrian.

Mrs. Atherton added that as her profession made her habits and home unstable, she did not intend to marry anybody.

But she was sure that men of other than English nationality, and American men especially, lacked the subtlety of the well-bred Englishman, his fitness and his charm of conversation and manner.

Another English author, who asked that her identity might not be disclosed, as she did not wish to quarrel with American friends, spoke even more definitely.

"When do you ever hear of English girls marrying Americans?" she asked. "There is a good reason for this."

"However wealthy their parents, the majority of the boys in rich American homes grow up to be drawing-room hooligans, while their sisters are developing all the refinement and more than the style and intelligence of European women of corresponding social position."

"These young money grubbers of the States enter a ladies' drawing room looking like furniture removers. They have no graces, no conversation. They are on a lower social plane than their own sisters."

"And for this reason, perhaps, they have no power to compel the respect of women. All true women feel the need of a master, or, as an American would say, a 'boss.'"

"I believe that every really good woman wants to look upon a man as literally her lord and master. But, of course, she wants to feel that the man is her superior in all that matters. American women do not find that sort of man among their own countrymen."

Mrs. Elizabeth York Miller, who is herself an American, and has only lived in England for two years, admitted that the American husband is not so companionable as the English husband.

But Americans were very unselfish. They were more generous with their money than Englishmen and allowed their wives more freedom.

"As a lover I think the American is sincere, if blunt," she continued. "He says to a girl, 'Now, look here, I love you. You are the nicest girl I've ever met. Let's get hitched right now.' From a sentimental point of view this is not idyllic, but it is straightforward."

"SHERLOCK HOLMES" BANNED.

Curious Action of Swiss Authorities in Regard to Book.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is the latest author to come under the ban of the book censors. It is reported, says the London Standard, that, "owing to a murder committed recently by two Swiss farm hands, who nearly exterminated the whole farm household, it has been decided by the Swiss railway authorities, as a beginning, that no literature of a tragic sort, especially of that kind dealing with detective stories, shall be on public sale. Among others, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's 'Sherlock Holmes' books are on the Swiss Index, and cannot henceforth be bought at Swiss railway stations." It appears that the farm lads declared that they were led to commit their crime through having read fascinating stories of how murders were committed.

"If Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's books are going to incite the Swiss people to murder, then the Swiss will not be without another ready excuse for their actions, even though they are unable to read 'Sherlock Holmes.'" This was the comment made upon the action of the Swiss railways by Sir Robert Anderson, once head of the criminal investigation department at Scotland Yard, and himself author of the book, "Criminals and Crime." Sir Robert added:

"There is not the slightest doubt that a certain sort of literature has a thoroughly evil effect upon growing lads. We have dealt with this in London in many ways. The books I am speaking of are, of course, those of the 'penny dreadful' type. At one time I issued orders that the police should call my attention specially to cases in which literature of this kind was found upon youthful offenders. Our work in this direction was the outcome of our attention being drawn to the subject by certain public bodies and public men, though it is impossible to estimate the good effects of our efforts toward stopping the circulation of the 'penny dreadful' literature."

ture. But works of the type of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's, which always point out how the cleverest criminals are brought to justice, would, of course, not be included in the same category."

TRUMPING A PARTNER'S ACE.

Normal Function on the Part of the Lady in Neighborhood Whist.

I wouldn't waste an evening on a game of nice, talkative neighborhood whist unless some beautiful woman, clad in cheerfulness as a garment, trumped her partner's ace and then, noting his blank gaze, remarked:

"Oh, what have I done? I didn't mean to do that. That was a mistake."

A Kansas City woman engaged in a game of whist and her partner was her husband's friend, says a writer in the Minneapolis Journal. He threw an ace and she trumped it and he cursed. And her husband sat right there and heard it and didn't resent it! The lady promptly sued for a divorce and it was granted her.

It is not to complain of the husband that I write, but to express astonishment at the lack of self-control of the husband's friend when that really most jubilant of events took place, namely, the trumping of the ace by somebody's wife. Taking conditions as they were, ought not the trumping of his ace to have brought the husband's friend to light and cheerful laughter, not sarcastic, but just good natured and bubbling like? The event made no great difference in the world's history, or would have made none, had it been properly received. And it may be laid down as a rule of the game never to "rear up" and holler "Fire!" when the lady who trumps aces performs her normal functions in neighborhood whist.

How They Bathe in Japan.

The bath in Japanese inns, Miss Vera Collum says in the Wide World Magazine, was often something of a difficulty. Once we were invited to bathe in the kitchen, where the steaming bathtub stood amid a little group of men who gathered in the room in the evening to gossip and smoke!

Very often the bath shed had no door, and when it had it was not infrequently a glass one. Much as the country folk in Japan stare at foreigners, they do not, however, take advantage of these defenseless bathrooms, so that the anticipation was always worse than the event. Very often at the busier inns two persons have to bathe together.

I have often been invited to share the bathroom with a Japanese lady guest. To avoid this awkward necessity Z—and I usually went to the bathroom together, and it was on these occasions that our little dog proved himself so useful. It is impossible to take anything but a cotton ukata to a Japanese bathroom, as there is scarcely ever a dressing room attached to the bathrooms of country inns, and the room itself is wet everywhere and contains neither peg nor shelf—in fact, all Japanese guests divest themselves of their garments outside the door!

So we generally tied our money bag round the dog's neck. He was a most ferocious little watchdog and never allowed anyone to enter our room in our absence without a noisy protest. Had we left him loose he would not have permitted anyone to enter without getting bitten.

Fire Prevention Among Pines.

Pines protect themselves against forest fires in a remarkable manner. For four or five years the stems of the infant trees attain a height of only a few inches above the soil. During this time their bark is extraordinarily thick, and that alone gives some protection. But, in addition, the long needles spring up above the stem and then bend on all sides in a green cascade which falls to the ground in a circle about the seedling. This green barrier can with difficulty be made to burn, while the shade that it casts prevents inflammable grass from growing near the protected stem. The officers of the forestry service at Washington are of opinion that it is owing to this peculiar system of self-protection which the pine seedlings have developed that the growth of evergreen oaks in Florida has been restricted in regions where fires have raged, while pine forests have taken their place.—Harper's Weekly.

Three Little Pussies.

There were three pussies, all downy gray. Sleeping so soundly, one April day. "Dear little pussies, why don't you run Over the green grass? That would be fun."

But the gray pussies said not a word. No pussy stretched a paw, no pussy purred; Still their heads rested on their brown pillows. They were not pussy cats—but pussy willows.

Wise Men of Gotham.

A "wise man of Gotham" is a fool, but the phrase arose through the real wisdom of the people that lived in the English town of Gotham. The story goes that King John of England once visited the town with the intention of seeing a castle that he thought of taking for himself. But the Gothamites did not care for the nearness of royalty and the expense they would be put to if the king should have a house there, and so they cooked up a scheme to drive him away. When the king arrived with his company of followers and rode through the town, he saw all the inhabitants of Gotham going about the most foolish of tasks, each person with a silly smile on his face. The king was disgusted with them. He would not live among crazy people, and so he rode on through the town and did not stop for the castle. Then the wise men of Gotham, still smiling but not in a silly fashion, told one another that there were more fools that passed through Gotham than remain in it.

Another Expedition to the Pole.

FOUND AT LAST.

Keeping His Promise.

It was a beautiful Saturday afternoon in spring. Harry was playing in the yard with his new express wagon when mamma called him.

"I want you to take this parcel to Aunt Kate," she said.

"I'll put it in my wagon and take it," answered Harry, and started off. On his way down the road he passed the house where Jamie Lane lived. And there was Jamie sitting on the front steps with his gray kitten in his arms. He was a very small, thin boy, and lame.

"Oh, Harry," he called out, "have you a new wagon?"

"Yes. Isn't it a beauty?" said Harry, coming up to Jamie's gate.

"I wish you would stay and play with me," and Jamie looked wistfully at the new wagon.

"Why yes; I will. I have to take this parcel to Aunt Kate; then I'll hurry back."

Harry soon reached his aunt's house. He gave her the note, and was going away when she said: "Your uncle is getting the carriage ready to drive me to town. Don't you want to go with us?"

"Oh, I guess I do," exclaimed Harry, eagerly.

"Well, then run home and tell your mother, because we won't be back until late."

"I'll go as quickly as I can, so you won't have to wait for me," and Harry was off like a flash.

He was quite excited, for going to town with Uncle and Aunt meant ice cream, and cake, and lots of nice things.

He was so busy thinking of them that he would have gone past Jamie on the steps, if the little fellow had not called out, "Oh, I'm so glad you are back!"

Harry suddenly stood still. He had forgotten all about Jamie. But, of course, he couldn't play with him now!

Jamie had gently put down his kitten and was hobbling out to the gate. "My, that's a splendid wagon," he said.

"Say—I—" began Harry, but the words he wanted to say wouldn't come. As he looked at Jamie's poor little thin face, he felt suddenly ashamed. How could he have been so mean as to forget his promise to play with him.

He swallowed hard. It wasn't easy to give up that trip to town.

"Say, Jamie, I've got to go back and tell Aunt Kate something I ought to have told her when I was there, I'll not be long, and I'll leave my wagon here till I come back."

"Of course," said Aunt Kate, "you must keep your promise to play with him. I would take him with us, too, but he is not strong enough to stand such a long drive."

Harry tried not to mind very much when, a half hour later, he saw his uncle and aunt drive down the road. His aunt waved her hand to them.

But he did not think of them very long, for he got so interested in making his little friend have a good time. And when it was time for him to go home, he was very happy when Jamie's mamma said: "My! you must be a good play-fellow. I haven't seen Jamie look so bright for a long time."

"I'm coming to play with him often. You see, I can easily wheel him about in this wagon."

When mamma asked him where he had been all afternoon, he told her that he had been playing with Jamie, but he did not say anything about Aunt Kate having invited him to drive to town.—Western Christian Advocate.

A Little More Patience.

There was once a miser who begrudged his poor horse the grain it ate. To economize he stopped feeding it. Of course the poor beast could not stand this treatment very long and died. The man's wife reproached him bitterly, saying, "I told you so." The miser only said: "It is all its own fault. If it had a little patience it would not have happened. It was just getting used to it when it gave up and died."

Barefoot.

Every field is full of spring; Maple trees are budding; Sunshine drenches everything; All the world is flooded With its heat. The lightest tasks Cause unending woe. Then the country lads ask: "Ma, why can't I go Barefoot?"

MAINE RABBIT A HARE.

Lepus Americanus the Species Found in Different Parts of State.

Last August, when the Federal biological survey issued bulletin No. 29, giving an exact and scientific description of ninety-seven distinct species of hares and rabbits inhabiting North America between the Panama canal and the north pole, residents of Washington County, Maine, who send more rabbits to the Boston market than all the rest of New England combined, opened their eyes widely and kept them open because in all Maine, from Allagash plantation in northern Aroostook to Kittery at the southwest, and to Eastport at the southeast, old hunters and men of science unite in declaring there is but one species known to run wild—the great northern hare or Lepus Americanus of naturalists, the first species on the continent to receive official recognition from science, it having been described and named as long ago as 1777.

Indeed, asserts the Bangor (Maine) Commercial, the discovery and naming of new species went on very slowly. In 1840 there were twelve known species within the area named, which number was increased to thirteen by Bachman in 1851, though Prof. Baird of the Smithsonian institution put it back to twelve again in 1857, where it remained without change until 1881, after which scores of eminent scientific men had rabbits or hares named in their honor.

H. W. Nelson, author of the bulletin, who has devoted years to the work, says no instance is known where any species imported to this country from Europe or Asia has escaped from restraint and gone wild. The little brown "bunnies" imported from England for purposes of dissection and the trying out of new poisons and antitoxins, are still kept in wired inclosures near every medical school and experimental laboratory in America, and though analogous forms are found burrowing among the hillocks of scrub oak from Salem, Mass., to the southern boundary of Connecticut, none have escaped from human control in sufficient numbers to form self-perpetuating colonies.

Less than ten years ago, when the style in Belgian hares fell away and the former craze dwindled to scattering hutches, it was predicted by farmers that a plague of Belgian hares would overrun New England worse than the rabbit invasion of Australia, but the fears were groundless and America has yet to find a Belgian hare running wild.

According to the Nelson definition, the distinction between rabbits and hares lies in the fact that hares make their homes in forms above ground and bring forth their young with the eyes open and fully clad in hair, while rabbits abide in burrows under the ground, and the young when born have their eyes closed and the bodies entirely devoid of hair or fur.

Advice for the Waiter.

Jack Barrymore dropped into a Broadway restaurant the other day and fate assigned to him a waiter who, to quote the actor, was "solid ivory from the chin up."

Falling to get anything he ordered, he at last lost patience.

"Waiter," he said, "you are the ultimate thing in punk dispensers of gastronomic provender. Why don't you chuck this job and try piccolo playing at the opera?"

"I no can play-a da peccalo," said the waiter.

"That's all right," replied Barrymore. "Why waste all your incompetence in one place?"—Success Magazine.

GOOD SHORT STORIES

A member of the Nebraska legislature was making a speech on some momentous question and in concluding said: "In the words of Daniel Webster, who wrote the dictionary, 'Give me liberty or give me death.'" One of his colleagues pulled at his coat and whispered: "Daniel Webster did not write the dictionary; it was Noah." "Noah nothing," replied the speaker; "Noah built the ark."

It was while Charlemagne Tower was ambassador to Russia that a New York City newspaper "spread itself" upon a fete held at St. Petersburg. A green copy-reader produced this result: "As pleasing to the eye as was all this decoration there was additional pleasure in the sight, as one stood at the head of the Prospekt Nevsky, of Charlemagne Tower, brilliantly illuminated, looming grand and imposing against the winter sky."

A teacher in one of the lower grade schools was instructing a class in the departments of the national government recently and came finally to the customs department. "When an ocean liner reaches Philadelphia," said the teacher, "a man all dressed up in uniform meets the passengers and takes all they have and inspects it. Now, can any one in the class tell me what that man is called?" A ready hand in the last row flew up. "Well, Tommy?" "Please, ma'am, he's called a pirate."

William had just returned from college, resplendent in peg-top trousers, silk hosiery, a fancy waistcoat, and a necktie that spoke for itself. He entered the library where his father was reading. The old gentleman looked up and surveyed his son. The longer he looked the more disgusted he became. "Son," he finally blurted out, "you look like a d— fool!" Later, the old major who lived next door came in and greeted the boy heartily. "William," he said with undisguised admiration, "you look exactly like your father did twenty years ago when he came back from school!" "Yes," replied William with a smile, "so father was just telling me."

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coat tails caught in it, and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, disheveled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor. That exalted personage roared with laughter, and said something to his interpreter. "Sah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick, an' will you please do it again?"

Charles Dickens used to relate an anecdote of the last moments of Fauntleroy, the great banker, hanged for forgery in 1824. His elegant dinners had always been followed by some remarkable and matchless curacao, the source of which he kept a deep secret. Three of his boon companions had an interview with him in the condemned cell the day before his execution. They were about to retire, when the most impressive of the three stepped back, and said: "Fauntleroy, you stand on the verge of the grave; remember the text, my dear man, that 'we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out.' Have you any objection, therefore, to tell me now, as a friend, where you got that curacao?"

Spring Song.

We hate to spring this on you, And, though it's really something new, We'll bet a dollar twenty-two You'll hate it worse before we're through. Unless you die!

The grass is green, the sky is pink, The mud is thicker than our ink— That's quite original, we think— And all the snow is on the blink. We wonder why.

Perhaps you think we mean to write More stuff like this just out of spite, Until the reader takes to flight; If so, you are mistaken quite— Decidedly.

It is not that our muse is shy, Or that we fear to make you cry, Or that the price of meat is high— Our fountain pen is running dry— And so are we. —Columbia Jester.

An Acute Sense of Taste.

William and Lawrence were in the habit of saving a part of their dessert from the evening dinner for consumption the next morning, and in accordance with this custom two small cakes had been placed in the cracker jar for them. William, being the first up on the following morning and being hungry, went to the jar. He found only one cake, and a large piece had been bitten out of that. Full of wrath, he went upstairs and roused his brother. "Say," he demanded, "I want to know who took that big bite out of my cake!"

"I did," sleepily answered Lawrence. "What'd you do that for?" "Well, when I tasted it I found it was your cake, and so I et the other one."—Youth's Companion.

His Objection.

"What have you against that man? He has done some very good things." "Yes; but I was one of them."—Buffalo Express.

While occupying the pastorate of a Western church in his early career Dr. George H. Fenton had a deacon whose character had always been above reproach until a certain prayer meeting which followed a sermon during which the elder had soundly slumbered.

"Will Brother Jones kindly lead?" was asked by the pastor at the beginning of the prayer service.

Waking with a start at the mention of his name, the deacon almost broke up the service by replying: "I led last time. It's your turn. What are trumps?"—Philadelphia Record.

FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Restored to Health by Curing the Kidneys.

Mrs. A. P. Hester, 614 Fourth Ave., Evansville, Ind., says: "For five years I was laid up with kidney trouble for weeks at a time. My limbs were swollen and I suffered almost unbearable pain. The kidney secretions were scanty, passed too frequently and scalded. I shook like a person with palsy. My case completely puzzled the doctors. Finally I began with Doan's Kidney Pills, soon felt better and ere long was cured."

Montreal and Quebec.

A veritable edition de luxe among railroad pamphlets has been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System to proclaim among tourists the glories of the cities of Montreal and Quebec. The brochure is beautifully printed and generally arranged in the artistic style of earlier days, when the ornamentation of a volume was regarded as an important incident to its presentation of reading matter. It gives an interesting description of the two most interesting cities in Canada, with many illustrations from photographs. Sent free to any address. Apply to W. S. Why an Alias?

One afternoon, when the Duke of Edinburgh and Sir Arthur Sullivan, having finished a duet, were sitting down to a homely "dish of tea" provided by Mrs. Sullivan, the composer's mother, it suddenly occurred to her to start the subject of family names and titles, which puzzled the good lady considerably.

"Sir," she said, "your family name is Guelph."

"My dear mother," began Arthur. "But it is, isn't it?" she persisted.

"Certainly," replied the duke, much amused. "What's the matter with it, Mrs. Sullivan?"

"Oh, nothing," returned the excellent old lady musingly. "Only I can't understand why you don't call yourself by your proper name."

Arthur wanted to explain to her, but the duke would not allow him to.

"There's nothing to be ashamed of in the name of Guelph, Mrs. Sullivan," he said gravely.

"That's exactly what I say," persisted Arthur's mother; "nothing whatever as far as I know, and, that being so, why you should not call yourself by it I can't understand."—F. C. Burnand's "Records and Reminiscences."

A Trustful Woman.

"A man walked out of his home in this town and was gone for two years."

"What excuse did he make when he got back?"

"Said he'd been sitting up with a sick friend."

"Haw! haw! That's rich." "Yes; and what's more, he actually convinced his wife that his friend was a chronic invalid."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

POSTAL SAVINGS
PROVED POPULARAll Republicans and Twenty-Two Democrats Vote For Bill.

FAVORED BY SENATE LEADERS

Not Only Has This Measure the Approval of the Administration, but in the Main It Is Satisfactory to the Senate Leaders and an Early Agreement in Conference Is Expected—Provisions of Popular Bill.

Washington, June 10.—The administration postal savings bank bill passed the house last night. On its final passage it was supported by all Republicans and twenty-two Democrats.
It took four roll-calls to put the measure through the house. The twenty-two Democrats who deserted their party brethren and voted for the bill justified their stand on the ground that the principle of the bill was endorsed by the Democratic national platform of 1908.

The postal savings bank bill now goes to the senate, and in a day or two it will be referred to a committee on reference representing the two houses. The bill has the approval of the administration, and in the main it is satisfactory to the senate leaders.
The indications are that an early agreement will be reached in conference and that there will be few changes in the bill passed by the house. This is the second big administration measure that has been passed by both houses, the railroad bill being the other one.

The bill provides that postal savings accounts may be opened by any person of the age of ten years or over, "and by a married woman in her own name
and free from any control or interference by her husband." Depositors are to be paid 2 per cent interest.

The affairs of the postal banks are to be administered by a board of trustees composed of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

UP AGAINST IT

Francis Burton Harrison Finds Himself Barred at White House.

Washington, June 10.—Francis Burton Harrison, Democratic representative in congress from the Sixteenth district of New York, is persona non grata at the White House. President Taft declined yesterday to meet Mr.
Harrison and also refused to allow him to enter the executive sanctum with a party of New York visitors.

Mr. Norton, the president's secretary, when asked what had embittered
the president against Mr. Harrison, thought it was something that had to do with the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry.
He was pretty certain it was an interview given out by Mr. Harrison on May 13, charging bad faith on the part of the president and the attorney general in connection with the latter's predating of the memorandum on the Glavis charges.

Representative Harrison has issued a warm statement in which he declares that the White House will be a lonely place if everyone who is justly criticizing the Taft administration is to be barred from it. "It is of no concern to me that I am not welcome at the White House," he says, "but it is of concern to every American citizen that a statement of truth about the president may render it impossible for a representative to discharge his duties."

weeks.

GETTING READY

The Principals in Roosevelt Wedding
Return to the City.

Littleton, N. H., June 10.—Theodore Roosevelt, jr., his fiancee, Miss Alexander, and her mother, Mrs. Henry Addison Alexander, with her maid, have left here for New York, where the wedding of Miss Alexander and young Roosevelt will take place the 20th of this month in the Fifth Avenue
Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Alexander has sold her summer cottage in the Profile, and in order to attend to the packing of the rare antique furniture which it contained and which is a wedding present to her daughter, the party have been stopping at the Lafayette cottage in the famous Franconia Notch, which is about fifteen miles from here. The party came to Littleton last Monday evening.

TAFT INDORSED

Formal Resolutions of the Wisconsin
Republican Convention.

Washington, June 10.—L. H. Bancroft, chairman of the Republican state convention in session at Milwaukee, has sent this telegram to President Taft:

"I am instructed by a resolution
unanimously adopted by Wisconsin Republicans assembled in a convention consisting of more than 1,000 delegates elected from every county in the state, to extend to you their hearty congratulations on your splendid and loyal efforts to redeem the pledges of the party made to the people in the national Republican platform upon which you were elected, and to assure you of the implicit and undiminished confidence and continued support of the Republican party in Wisconsin,
which in 1908 gave the national Republican platform and to the Republican candidates nominated thereon, a plurality of nearly 100,000 votes."

"The president responded with a telegram expressing his gratification and hearty thanks.

Estrada Appeals to Court.

Washington, June 10.—Thomas P.
Moffatt, American consul at Bluefields,
Nicaragua, has forwarded to the state department a dispatch sent by Senor Estrada, president of the revolutionary government, to the president of the Central American court of justice at Cartago, asking the court to use its influence to induce Madriz to accept his proposal for a settlement of the difficulties in Nicaragua.

Want Negroes Removed.

Seattle, Wash., June 10.—Private Nathaniel Bledser, a member of Company D of the negro regiment, the Twenty-fifth infantry, stationed at Fort Lawton, has been identified as the soldier who attacked Mrs. J. W. Redding at her home near the fort on Saturday night. Residents of this district held a mass meeting and adopted resolutions demanding the removal of negro troops from Lawton.

Killed Himself After Rebuke.

Danville, Ill., June 10.—Because his employers reproved him for using a horse and buggy all night without their consent, William Hayes, foreman at the Gustin livery stable, drank an ounce of carbolic acid and died a few minutes later. Hayes leaves a widow living at Crawfordville, Ind. He recently lost a daughter and had been drinking heavily since.

Doctors Deny Responsibility.

St. Louis, June 10.—The publication of the details of a nude dance by a Natchez dancer before the surgery section of the American Medical association, now in convention here, has created a sensation among the visiting physicians. All connected with the arrangement of the entertainment denied responsibility for the dance.

A New Aeroplane Record.

Paris, June 10.—Officers Marconnet
and Feguant of the French army aviation corps, flew from Chalons Sur Marne to the gates of Paris, a distance of 105.6 miles, in two hours and fifty minutes, without a stop. This constitutes a distance record for an aero-plane carrying two persons.

Flying Machine Runs Amuck.

London, June 10.—Aviator D'Artigan attempted a flight in a Bleriot monoplane at Worcester. The machine failed to rise, but as it sped along the ground it swerved and plowed into the crowd of spectators, killing dozens. One woman was killed and several persons injured.

ON A GOOD BASIS

The Argument Is With Indiana Republicans This Year.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, June 9.—Charles G.
Sefrit of the Washington Herald, one of the strong and positive forces in the newspaper field in Indiana, talking of the political situation in Indiana, says: "The argument is with the Republicans this year. It is a time for sober discussion and forcible and logical presentment of conditions. Indiana voters are men of open mind. They believe in fair play, justice, decency and honor in public life. They believe in moral courage, positive action and sincerity in public men. They do not like a coward nor approve a trimmer.
During the coming months the voters of Indiana will be making up their minds as to their choice, not only for the United States senate, but they will be picking out a state ticket.
More important than all, the voters of Indiana will be deciding the question of re-apportionments, congressional and legislative. They will be choosing the men to whom is to be given the tasks of re-districting Indiana for congressional and legislative purposes.
It is up to the voters to determine whether the Democratic party, as now controlled in Indiana, shall gerrymander the state, or whether Republicans, who have proved fair in the past, shall
do that important work, in fairness.
The voters will be settling in their own minds, in the coming months,
whether the Indiana congressional delegation shall continue Democratic,
or shall be returned to Republican control. On this latter issue much depends, nationally.

"A great work is cut out for the Republican editors of the state. As I see it, the newspapers will have a large part in placing the logic of the political situation clearly before the voters. Now is the time when the voter's mind is receptive. He is open to conviction and ready to listen to argument. There is no call for heat, denunciation and abuse. Calmness and fairness are more likely to appeal to the popular mind than bitterness and wrangling. The Republicans seem to have a large advantage in the fact that the opposition is seriously disturbed by bitter wrangling among the foremost Democrats of the state. In my judgment the voters will not be misled this year. If they are acquainted with facts and conditions; if the Republicans, as in the past, deal frankly and honestly with the issues, and adhere to the principles which the common sense of the people is bound to approve, there can be no question as to the result. Indiana once more will be where she belongs, strongly within the Republican lines."

Roy Shattuck, mayor of Brazil, once more is being mentioned as a congressional possibility in the Republican convention to be held soon in the Fifth district. Mr. Shattuck, in a public speech a few days ago, said that he would accept the Republican nomination for congress if the honor were to be given him without a contest. It is understood that Mr. Shattuck will not make a fight to obtain the nomination.
It is further understood that the prize will not go to any man without something of a contest. This condition exists because Republicans of the Fifth feel confident that a nomination this year is equivalent to an election. At the same time, there is a feeling that a hard fought contest for a nomination
might cause differences and disputes such as would affect the campaign and endanger the situation. It is in the interests of party harmony and success that Mr. Shattuck declares he would prefer a nomination without a contest. He is deeply concerned for the future of his party, not only in the Fifth, but in the state and nation. He desires, as all other Republicans do,
that the nominee of the party, wherever he may be, so long as he is worthy of support, shall be elected next November. Mr. Shattuck makes it understood that he will be out working for the Republican ticket this year,
whether he is on the ticket or not.

William M. Whitem of Montgomery county, has been nominated for joint senator by the Republicans of Montgomery and Parke counties. Mr.
White had a solid Montgomery county
at his back, and obtained four votes
out of Parke, though that county presented two candidates, State Senator G. E. Hanna and H. Clay Owen. The convention, which was held at Waveland, went to the fourth ballot, with White showing eighteen votes. He needed nineteen to win, and that vote was forthcoming on the fourth. Republicans of the two counties declare that the strongest possible nomination
was made, and it is predicted that Mr.
White will be elected handily. Parke county had the state senator last time,
and for this reason there was a strong sentiment favoring the alternation idea. On this theory Montgomery was allotted the nomination, and it is believed that the arrangement means a decided strengthening of the whole party cause in Montgomery.

Protests are going up in many parts of the state because the fish and game
are left unprotected while the governor of Indiana plays politics with the office of fish and game warden. Delay in appointing a successor to Z. T.
Sweeney, retiring Republican commissioner, has resulted in the expiration of the commissions of many deputies.
This means that in many parts of the state there are no officers empowered or appointed to guard against infractions of the fish and game laws.

U. S. JACKSON

Chairman of Indiana State
Democratic Committee.LAST DAY IN ENGLAND
SPENT IN THE WOODSThe Colonel! Wanted to Get Back to Nature.

London, June 10.—Mr. Roosevelt's last day in England was something of a mystery. The reporters acceded to his request that they should not pursue him, and beyond the fact that he spent many hours in the New Forest,
which, by the way, has been preserved
as a forest for more than 800 years,
little is known of his doings.

According to one version Mr. Roosevelt in a talk with Foreign Minister Grey concerning his approaching departure, expressed a wish to tramp the English countryside, which is now in its fullest beauty, and to hear English songbirds in full chorus. Sir Edward Grey, who is a keen ornithologist, and who is otherwise equipped for companionship with a sportsman, immediately offered himself as Mr. Roosevelt's companion guide in the New Forest,
where wild life can be observed to the fullest. The pair took a train from London and alighted at the northern boundary of the forest. They walked for many hours in its wildest recesses.
The weather was ideal. They stayed last night at a country inn. Another version is that they spent the night
in the woods, identifying the voices of nocturnal birds and awaiting the outburst of song which accompanies the dawn. Mr. Roosevelt did not return to London, and joined his family
at Southampton to sail for home today.

During three weeks Mr. Roosevelt has received some 3,000 letters, a majority of them since his Guild Hall speech. Some of these were frankly but politely dissentient, and some were roundly abusive. Most, however, were appreciative, and as many of them came from prominent persons, Mr.
Roosevelt was much gratified. In addition to these letters there were the usual requests for autographs, protests and pleadings against slaying wild animals, and numerous other topics.

SAVED
FROM AN OPERATIONBy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—
"After an operation four years ago
I had pains down-
ward in both sides,
backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured
of my troubles."

Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.
New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles.
Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs.
LILY PEYRON, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

The Mitchell Tribune has a long article this week about the "blind tigers" there, and the failure of the officers to see these animals prowling about their streets. Perhaps the officers there are doing like the officers in some other cities in southern Indiana. Instead of taking the initiative in law enforcement, for which they were elected, they are hiding behind the subterfuge that if somebody will file the affidavit they will prosecute the cases.

SAYS COMBINE IS UNLAWFUL

Indiana Attorney General Fighting Insurance Trust.

SEEKING ITS DISSOLUTION

In Allegations Presented in Court at Indianapolis Attorney General Bingham Says There Is an Unlawful Combine of Insurance Companies Organized to Control Business in a Way Inimical to the People.

Indianapolis, June 10.—Attorney General James Bingham is attempting to show to Judge Weir of superior court the completeness of an alleged organization of 139 insurance companies doing business in Indiana. The plan, according to the attorney general, is this:

The United States is divided into great parts of one gigantic organization of insurance men, it is said. The divisions are designated as the Western Union of Underwriters or the Southern Union of Underwriters, as the case may be. These unions have certain states under their control, the states in turn controlling the local boards throughout its territory. The minutes of the meetings of many of these local boards together with depositions from members of the organizations, are being introduced as evidence by Bingham in the case now on trial in superior court.

Evidence has shown the terms of membership contracts are rigid to the extreme, the boards exercising great power over their members. A member may be expelled from the organization for a certain period of time and not permitted to write insurance during that time if he does not conform to the rules of the union. While suspended he is subject to a further suspension and a heavier fine for other misdemeanors.

James H. Drew, secretary of the Indianapolis Fire Insurance Agents' association, on the witness stand Wednesday testified that the actual practices of the union are about as outlined.

The attorney general says he has hopes that one of the results of his suit against the fire insurance companies will be lower insurance rates throughout Indiana. He says if he can break up the fire insurance combine it will open up the fire insurance business in Indiana on a fair competitive basis, which will produce fair profits for the insurance companies and at the same time reduce the cost to the insured.

POLITICAL NEWS BUREAU

Democratic Editors of Indiana Pave the Way For Such an Enterprise.

Indianapolis, June 10.—Democratic editors representing every congressional district in the state met at the Denison hotel yesterday afternoon, and voted that it was the sense of the body that a news bureau shall be established in Indianapolis for the purpose of distributing political news to the Democratic papers during the campaign.

While the financial end of the question has not received special consideration, it is estimated by some of the newspaper men who have been long in the business, that it will require no small amount of money to carry the enterprise through. One newspaper man estimated that the expense of conducting the bureau throughout the campaign would not be less than $3,000. It is the hope of those who have the plans in hand, if successful, to start the bureau some time in July, preferably in the early part of the month.

The semi-annual meeting of the Indiana Associated Weeklies, an organization of publishers of papers in the towns not county seats, convened here this afternoon. The meeting will close tomorrow afternoon.

Railroaders Hold Picnic.

Richmond, Ind., June 10.—Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons, employees of the Richmond division, Pennsylvania lines, and their families, picnicked at Glen Miller park yesterday. Special trains ran into the city from Cincinnati and Logansport and each city and town along the entire division contributed its quota of excursionists.

A $10,000 Blaze.

Greentown, Ind., June 10.—Fire destroyed business property to the value of $10,000 here. The buildings included the K. M. & W. traction station, Willcutt Brothers' general store, the Crevitson & Cates livery barn, the Brown & Ware barber shop and the real estate and insurance offices of Thomas Hawkins and George Myers.

They Cling to Bonnets.

Winona Lake, Ind., June 10.—Before closing the Dunkard national conference, delegates to the annual convention here decided to make no changes in the wearing apparel of the members of the church, particularly with regard to the bonnets of the women.

Inspected the Gary Mills.

Chicago, June 10.—Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury of the United States, and E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, visited the latter's namesake, Gary, Ind., on a tour of inspection of the steel mills.

STILL IN CONTROVERSY.

Question of Opening Alley in Bitler's Addition Still Before Council.

The controversy regarding the opening of the alley in block 19, Butler's addition, was before the city council again last night. This matter has been in controversy for the past four years, and for some reason the property-holders have been unable to come to a mutual agreement. The petition question the council to open the alley was presented four years ago, but the alley was never opened, and another petition was filed about the time the new council went into office. The matter was taken under advisement and the city engineer was ordered to set the stakes for the alley.

After the preliminary survey was made, the engineer reported that there was an error in the plat, and that if the alley was opened where it should be according to a correct survey, it would not be in the center of the square. After a reconsideration of the matter, he was instructed to set the stakes for the alley according to the present plat. This was done and the alley ordered open for the use of the public. It seems that several of the property-holders failed to remove their fences from the alley, as was surveyed, and the marshal was ordered to remove these obstructions. According to the present line, the alley is sixteen feet wide, but is not exactly straight, on account of the difference in the surveys.

Last night several of the property-holders presented a petition asking that all the fences be removed from the alley as surveyed. It seems that a number of the residents of the square are not satisfied with the present location, and do not want to remove the buildings and fences until the true survey is made. The matter will probably be taken up in the near future and finally settled.

Dont delay. If you feel "all tired out." Try Whitmer's Liver-Kidney Medicine. It has cured hundreds and will cure you. j11d

The funeral services of the late William Fletcher Steele were held at the Pleasant View church this morning at 10 o'clock. The services were largely attended by the friends of the deceased, who was well known in Jackson and Jennings counties.

IN A RECORD OF BIRTHS.

Name and date appear—
And a note
Some one entered here,
As he wrote.

Records were but scant
In that age,
And they lie aslant
On the page.

Very brief they be—
Quaint indeed;
Yet it touches me,
As I read.

How, when I was born,
Two felt thus;
"God's best gift, this morn, Came to us."

Could his heart or hers
(Now at rest)
Have foretold what stirs
In my breast?

Glad or sad my lot—
Nay, who cares?
For that day was not
Mine, but theirs.

The Scarlet Spider's Bite

Between sun and sun, almost in the twinkling of an eye, fences, signboards, even the crumbling walls of old Corpus Christi, blazed with the announcement of the coming show: "El Gran Circo. Nueve dias en la Ciudad de Mexico." Human snakes, giraffes, zebras, acrobatic elephants, gleams of graceful pink proportions skimming the air, dazzled the eye of tottering youth and business-like middle-age alike.

The joys of bull-ring and Easter fests faded into nothingness in comparison with the promises of la reina del circo describing pink semicircles through the atmosphere; los incomparables acrobatas soaring at leisure through space; Johnny Purvis y Charles Jing looking out of each other's eyes; and marvelous other feats that made the twenty-fourth of May seem weeks, instead of days, away.

Posters of the beautiful Clarita, la reina, the sunlight tangled in the meshes of her golden hair, dalled with bottles and casks in wine shops, topped above melons and eggs in restaurant windows, eclipsed the display of hats and lingerie in uptown shops, until innumerable ways she had demoralized the gaping world that waited with bated breath the dawning of the 24th. All this because never before had the great American circus visited the City of Mexico.

When at last the 24th actually dawned and the hour of the great street parade drew near, the walks along the published line of march were so thronged with eager onlookers, outriders with pointed bayonets charged the crowds to clear a way for the procession. And with a passing of the parade the populace formed in line while the cages and floats wound into the circus quarters, and then filed into the big tent, there to wait several hours for the show to begin. Those who came earliest secured the best seats, so those who waited until the hour scheduled for the performance had to stand in the tent openings or line the ring.

It was because he had arisen late, breakfasted late, loitered around the office, and arrived at the hour appointed for the beginning of the performance, that Rodriguez di Arguello, unable to get a seat, was standing near the curtain of the dressing tent when the blare of trumpets and the stentorian tones of the oily ringmaster announced in halting Spanish the feat of this "most greatest ever" tight-rope, slack-wire, and high-trapeze artiste, Clarita, la reina del circo.

Young Di Arguello had watched idly while an elephant danced on a tub, a sea lion conducted a singing school, glass balls had turned into live guinea pigs, and similar marvelous feats had been perpetrated before the wide-eyed audience; but at the announcement of the entrance of Clarita he turned toward the curtain expecting to see the usual creature of painted smiles and cotton roses.

The band softened its blare to play a few bars of "La Paloma" when a rift in the curtain revealed a pair of wonderful blue eyes above a slender length of tinsel corset and pink fleshings before a spring and a bound landed her in the ring.

Boldly the dark eyes of Di Arguello fixed the blue eyes as they peered from the curtain, and frankly and fearlessly they laughed back at him. The next moment the voice of the crowd arose to welcome the entrance of la reina del circo.

Seizing the first trapeze, set in motion by the dark-visaged little man who had reached the ring from the opposite side, the silver ankles twinkled a moment in mid-air as she poised for her flight toward the highest. Eyes and mouth agape, excitement-loving Mexico watched the little wisp of woman swing, alight; swing again and catch with unerring sureness the next higher bar, until she reached the top—the agile little man in scarlet tights counting "One, two, three," as she swung from bar to bar with the precision of a clock.

Until the perilous downward flight was finished not a long breath was drawn in the audience; then with a triumphant fanfare of trumpets and an airy somersault she threw a handful of kisses to her delighted audience and skipped across the ring. The blue eyes, as they met the eyes of the tall young fellow at the exit, laughed again, this time at the terror depicted in his face, for every breathless minute as he followed the fearless little figure swinging and catching in mid-air he had expected to see her dashed to her death over his head. Her smiling glance reassured him, and the look he turned upon her established a sort of sympathy between them, for, instead of the pleasure in the suspense she afforded her audience, here was only intense concern for her safety—to say nothing of the graceful manner and air of distinction that went with it.

At the next performance, although Di Arguello was among the earliest arrivals, he scorned a seat. This time the blue eyes peered through the rift in the curtain an instant before her act was called, and the tall young stranger, quick to see his opportunity, sprang to her feet with: "Pardon me, did you drop this?"

It was only the rose he had worn in his coat that he gave her, and the next minute she was gone—the little dark-visaged man had drawn her back—but Di Arguello had achieved a glimpse of girlish grace and a freshness of youth quite innocent of the painted smile he had been taught to expect.

"Diablo!" Di Arguello looked around the sawdust ring, the clowns, the lion-tamers, the bareback riders, the tawdry squalor of it all, and wondered how it could happen. He had also seen white water lilies growing sweet and fair from the slime of their marshes, and had wondered how that could happen.

The world, the next day, buzzed with echoes of the sawdust ring, the sea-lions, the human snakes, the lion-tamer, the trapeze performers. Di Arguello cringed when he heard the name of la reina Clarita banded from lip to lip. Having seen her at close range, he knew she was not the mere tinsel figure of the "most greatest ever," in cotton roses and painted smile, but a woman, young and sweet, with wonderful blue eyes that danced and smiled with the very joy of living, courting death to provide thrills of suspense for this excitement-loving crowd.

SINCE THE DAYS OF HER FIRST TIGHT-ROPE.

suspense for this excitement-loving crowd.

Rodriguez di Arguello finding himself so frankly interested in this blue-eyed little thing, lost no time in indulging the new whim that put a keener edge on life than he had felt for a long time. Every evening now she made excuses to leave her dressing room in time to snatch a word with him, and when she twinkled in her mid-air swing coyly blew him a kiss.

The comparison of the slime from which the white water lilies grew forced itself insistently into his mind as he ingratiated himself with the oily ringmaster in order to see something of the life behind the tawdry glitter of the show. But it was not easy, even with the good graces of the ringmaster, the lion tamer, and the fire eaters, to meet la reina between performances. The dark-visaged little man was zealous in his care of his pupil. The hours between practice and performance must be given to relaxation; excitement unstrings the nerves, and a steady nerve is the trapeze artist's whole capital.

"I can't—I wouldn't dare," the sparkling little Clarita faltered in a stolen interview, the scarlet spider an instant off guard.

"Some time," Di Arguello urged, as she passed him in her bound into the ring.

Up, up, up, the little figure swung, the scarlet spider's admittance "One, two, three," calculating the play of every muscle. At last her moment of pause was reached when she gained her mid-air perch. Then as she worked her swing up to its highest point of vibration, the scarlet tights twinkling every movement, every pulse beat, the golden head bound with its gay red roses nodded an unmistakable "Yes" to some one standing near the dressing room curtain.

The heavy lids drooped quickly over the beady black eyes of the dark-visaged trapezist. It was his own crown of glory when la reina Clarita's feats brought showers of applause upon her head. Since the days of her first tight-rope and slack-wire efforts he had worked with her, taught her, trained her nerves into iron, her muscles into steel. He had guarded her girlish innocence against the temptations of the life surrounding her and the ogling eyes of the too-admiring gallants of the towns where they stopped, worshipping her always at a reverent distance ever since she had been old enough to appreciate her power over him. And when, in her high trapeze act, she turned her trustful, triumphant eyes upon him and he felt himself the custodian, the preserver, of her life, his cup of joy ran over. Even her indifference to his suit and resentment of his interference in what were to her mere harmless flirtations, were more than balanced by that look, when, at his "One, two, three," she sprang into his outstretched arms with her trusting smile.

Meantime, hugging to her heart her secret with the handsome stranger, so good, so kind, so anxious to get her away from her sawdust setting, the little streak of tinsel-light flashed and circled overhead, guided and steadied by the faithful ticking of the scarlet spider's "One, two, three." This time, however, the first time since the proud day she had taken her first flight in public, her eyes looked into his merrily as a target by which to gauge her effort—merely in the light in which Toby, the acrobatic elephant, regarded his trainer.

The exigencies of a nine-days' stay left no time for unnecessary preliminaries on the part of Di Arguello. His mind had been quickly made up and while the iron was hot was the time to strike. Although the management guarded its bright, particular star with hydra-headed watchfulness, the name Di Arguello opened many doors with the oily ringmaster. The language of the languorous brown eyes, with the skill of much practice, needed no interpreter to the laughing blue ones, and the next performance was to be the last.

"To-night," Di Arguello whispered, the evening of the close of this most successful engagement. His automobile was waiting down the street, with clinging wraps and lace mantilla with which the tinsel corset and hated cotton roses might be easily disguised.

Their moment's interview as she appeared at the door of the tent was longer to-night than usual, and neither stopped to wonder where the scarlet spider might be. Because of the over-shadowing watchfulness of her trainer, all the world, to Clarita, was good. It was kind, oh, most kind and very good, indeed, of this handsome young gentleman to want to get her away from her circus life, although she had never thought it was so different from any other kind of life until he had pointed out to her the comparison between the lily and the slimy marshes.

The scarlet tights crouching on the other side of the curtain reached the door just in time to catch the flash of ecstasy the blue eyes shot into the brown and hear the proprietary tones in which the bold young Mexican gave his commands.

A steady nerve is the trapeze artist's whole capital, and the emotions of hate or even love are the first luxuries denied him. Therefore the high-trapeze act of Clarita, la reina del circo, began promptly when it was called. Night after night the climax of enthusiasm had been reached when Clarita sprang into the ring, threw kisses to her admiring audience and stood a moment, agitated, in the limelight before seizing her swing. To-night the crowds went mad. Showers of confetti, perfume-filled eggs, fans, coins, rained down at the little trapezist's feet. This was the greatest act of the circus, and to-night was the crowning success of all her efforts.

The happy heart under the tinsel corset went out to all this gay, mad world that stamped and called and shouted its glee at the feat she was to perform for them, but the blue eyes clung, almost afraid to watch her bars, to the figure near the curtain of the dressing room tent.

Up, up, into the air she climbed from bar to bar. "One, two, three," every muscle acting in unison with the ticking of that faithful scarlet clock. The first series of swings was safely reached and with a flash and quiver of pink curves la reina landed safely in the outstretched scarlet arms.

This, their moment of triumph, set the holiday-minded audience off again into peals of applause, delaying their act and keeping the protecting scarlet arms around the tinsel waist. An instant's flash of memory brought back their good old tight-rope days, when he had been her hero, and the later slack-wire work, the wide blue eyes smiling trustingly into his with the present triumph, when she had all Mexico at her feet. But to-night the radiant smile that had set her soul aflame was turned from him. Down, down into the pit, at the curtain door, those blue eyes, the barometer of his life, shot past him. He had lost her forever and for what? "One, two, three." Would she not remember to turn her eyes up to his if only from force of habit? The hands that clasped her wrists tightly, lightly, pressed a trifle harder to recall her to the moment. A blind, ecstatic smile over-spread her countenance, conscious of nothing but Di Arguello standing near the ring.

Again the heavy lids shut away the despair that surged in upon the dark-visaged little man. "Lost and to a life of what?"

"One!" This was the most perilous stage of the act. The bar must be set in motion in order to swing back the instant he let her wrists go. The stamping, roaring crowd below was breathless. Was it the radiance of her beauty to-night that made the audience one great heart that throbbed for her safety?

"Two!" Di Arguello, suddenly beside himself with the thought that the happiness of his life was hanging by her heels in mid-air forty feet above his head, groaned aloud and cursed the hour he had let her take this final risk.

Still fearless, confident in her trainer's unerring ticking, radiant with the joy of this wonderful new happiness, la reina del circo prepared for her last flight.

"Three!" The net was spread under the whole area covered by the trapeze, and the chance of a fall to the ground reduced almost to an impossibility. This one last moment she was his—the next she would be lost forever.

Twice the bar swung toward him. Now! One strong, steady motion and it would reach the opposite bar squarely, but with a dexterous twist the bar might swing just beyond the protection of the net, and—the alternative was the insolent young Mexican waiting for her at the curtain.

A terrified hush fell upon the audience, then a muffled groan arose. A few women shrieked or wept aloud. Di Arguello, rushing to the spot where the tinsel corset glittered in the sawdust, pushed the crowd of clowns and charlatons roughly aside.

"Madre de Dios!" he swore, beside himself with tempestuous grief, "I loved her!"

As the trapeze ceased to swing a shrinking scarlet figure crept to the spot where the gay cotton roses lay so low. "Not half so much as I," he groaned, through his painted smile.—San Francisco Argonaut.

GLAD HAND DUE HIM.

Thirty-fourth Child Entitles Joseph Sears to Palm as a Father.

Joseph Sears, 57 years old and a resident of Dedham, Mass., is the proud father of thirty-four children.

The first was born forty years ago, the eighteenth was born twenty-three years ago, the thirty-third was born two years ago.

A baby boy, the latest addition to one of the most remarkable families in New England, has set the record mark for anti-race suicide examples in Massachusetts, the Boston Globe says.

Mr. Sears, who is employed in a dye factory within a few hundred yards of his home on Hillside avenue, East Dedham, was born in Canada. As a young boy he came to New Bedford and while working there as a factory hand met and fell in love with Miss Jean Baudrie. At the time Mr. Sears was 17 years old.

The first three births in the Sears family resulted each time in twins. The first pair, according to Mr. Sears, weighed together just three and one-half pounds. Thus at the age of 21 the young husband found himself the proud father of six children after only three years of married life.

Thereafter the young Seares appeared at a surprisingly rapid rate. At 34 years of age, at the time of the first Mrs. Sears' death, the father was the parent of eighteen children. Thirteen of them, however, had died in infancy. Mr. Sears thus found himself wifeless and with five small children left in his care, and he set about finding another wife. Five months after the death of his first wife he was again married and settled in a new home.

Of the second family nine children have died. Four of the daughters and several of the sons are married and have families of their own. Six of the children, however, live at the little Sears home in East Dedham, and it was here one week ago that the thirty-fourth child was born.

"I am a man who has always been used to large families," says the father of the tremendous Dedham brood, "and I always liked children. If I had been compelled to pass my life as some people do, with only one or two children, I would have been unhappy. I don't believe that if a person likes children he should be without them, no matter what his financial standing may be. The high price of food should not prevent any one from having a family."

OUR STRANGE LANGUAGE.

Proved by Various Interpretations of the Verb "To Strike."

The verb "to strike" is likely to provoke more or less bother among persons seeking to acquire the English language, the Philadelphia Ledger says. It may have any one of several meanings.

"To strike" means to hit, beat, assault. It is this meaning of the term that is brought to mind by the spectacle of a blackened eye. Often it may be avoided by moving on when the policeman says so.

"To strike" means a mere attempt to hit, as when a batter, according to reports on the sporting page, "fans the air," therefore a miss. This suggests a contradiction, but no matter, there are others in the language.

"To strike" means to leave a job because of dissatisfaction with conditions. This sort of strike is never a miss, for it hits something every time. "To strike," when qualified by the words "to rich," is to discover, while prospecting, a deposit of precious metal, or an ore-bearing vein. From this use the term has been adapted to express the achievement of sudden wealth in any field. To make "a strike" in bowling, however, is different.

Again, "to strike" is to make a gentle touch directed toward a friendly pocket-book. Here the strike is in the effort and not in the result. Chances are there will be no result.

A few lines might be devoted to "pare," "pear" and "pair," identical in sound, but in nothing else except spelling by the foolish method.

Briefly, "pare" is a verb, meaning to denude of tegumental covering, but applies mostly to fruit. Also potatoes. You may pare an apple, which is to skin it, but you may not pare an elephant, although it is possible to skin it if you have the elephant. Pear is a pomological product that grows on a tree. If the tree had but two pears these would be a pair. A married couple sometimes constitute a pair, and then one goes to Nevada. A pair, in short, is made up of two of a kind.

By remembering these simple facts the student will be enabled to avoid confusion.

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irassburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the sixth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed a great change."—Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irassburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

An Illinois farmer presents the country with an almost cobless corn. The new corn is described as having each kernel growing on a parent stem instead of adhering to a cob. The Illinois grower says that he eliminated the cob by taking the tip of each ear, and setting on the very top kernels, and shortly expects to evolve a perfectly cobless corn. The State Agricultural college is looking after the experiment.—National Magazine.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

It is surprising the many different appetizing ways that Corned Beef can be prepared for the family's meals. Every one likes Corned Beef and there is no more healthful or delicious dish than Libby's, carefully selected from prime beef and properly "corned."

There is some waste, to be sure, when bought at the butcher's, but in the plan here suggested you may buy the finest corned beef in the world in which there is absolutely no waste and every particle of which can be eaten.

Suppose you ask your grocer for Libby's Corned Beef. It represents all full value—no bone, no rattle—just clean, pure corned beef selected first hand from the finest beef stock—no scraps or second pieces—and corned and cooked to perfection in Libby's wonderful white enamel kitchens. A can of Libby's Corned Beef sliced and served cold with dill pickles and potato salad is a delightful meal and will be enough for four people.

Corned Beef Hash.—Take the contents of a can, chop fine, add one-fourth as much boiled or baked potatoes, a little fried onion and a small quantity of water. Cook slowly until thoroughly heated, then serve on toast with or without poached eggs.

Corned Beef Omelette.—Beat the yolks and whites of four eggs separately and add one-half of the whites to all of the yolks. Put in a hot frying pan and, when nicely browned on the bottom, sprinkle a cup of minced corned beef over it. Spread over this the remainder of the whites, put in the oven and brown on top. Then fold and serve.

Creamed Corned Beef.—Mince the contents of a can of Libby's Corned Beef. Put over this a dressing of cream gravy with the yolk of an egg beaten into it. Serve on toast.

New England Boiled Dinner.—You may have this in one-fourth of the time it usually takes. Put a can of Libby's Corned Beef in boiling water—it is already cooked—and serve in the usual manner with vegetables.

Besides the economy in the use of Libby's Corned Beef, another great advantage to the housewife in using it is that it is all cooked when bought and there is no necessity for the long, tedious and expensive boiling which is necessary with raw corned beef. The house is not filled with steam and odors and valuable time is saved. Libby's Corned Beef is ready at once for serving in any one of the many ways mentioned above, and you will find it a great convenience to try it next time. Be sure you get Libby's, McNeill & Libby's Corned Beef.

A Natural Question. Henry James, the noted novelist, does not agree with Col. Roosevelt on the question of large families. Small families, such as prevail in France, indicate, to Mr. James' mind, intelligence and progress, while large families indicate the reverse.

"Large families are so embarrassing, too," said Mr. James on his last American visit. "I once knew a man named Thompson who had fourteen children. Thompson agreed one spring holiday to take his children to the seashore for the week end."

"They set off, reached the station, got their tickets and were about to board the train, when Thompson was roughly collared by a policeman."

"Here, wot 'a' you bin a-doin' of?" the policeman growled, fiercely.

"Me? Nothing. Why?" stammered poor Thompson.

"The policeman waved his truncheon toward the Thompson family."

"Then wot the bloody blazes," he hissed, "is this here crowd a-follerin' ye fur?"

A Curious Custom.

In observance of a custom, which is said to have originated over 500 years ago, 21 aged widows of the parish of St. Bartholomew the Great, London, attended the church the other forenoon to receive sixpence each, which they had to pick off a gravestone. The custom is the survival of a bequest left by a lady for the provision of doles for widows over 60 years of age, on condition that prayers were offered for her soul every Good Friday. The tombstone from which the money is picked is supposed to be that of the benefactress, but it is so crumbled with age that it is impossible to say whose it is. This uncertainty, however, does not interfere with the usefulness of the coins to any considerable extent.

S.S.S. PERMANENTLY HEALS SORES & ULCERS

Old sores remain open and chronic ulcers refuse to heal because they are kept constantly irritated and infected by impurities in the blood. This impurity of the circulation comes from various causes. A long spell of debilitating sickness, which breeds disease germs in the system, the retention of refuse matters of the body because of a sluggish condition of the eliminative members, a continued malarial state of health, inherited bad blood, etc., are usually responsible. But whatever the cause of the infected circulation, the sore or ulcer CANNOT heal until the blood is purified. S. S. S. heals sores and ulcers in the very simplest way. It just goes into the circulation and removes the impurities and polluted matter which are the means of keeping the sore open; then the sore is bound to heal. S. S. S. is the finest of all blood purifiers, and not only does it cleanse the circulation but it adds the necessary healing qualities to the blood, and in this way assists nature to quickly cure sores and ulcers. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., can do no permanent good toward healing an old sore because such treatment does not reach the blood. These external applications may be soothing and cleansing, but the healing must begin at the bottom, and this is just what S. S. S. does by first purifying the blood, and then furnishing nourishment and health to all the flesh tissues. Book on Sores and Ulcers free to all who write and request it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 12, 1910

THE CANAANITE WOMAN. Lesson:—Matt. 15: 21-28.

GOLDEN TEXT:—Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt.—Matt. 15: 28.

This chapter begins with a question from the Pharisees, "Why do Thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders?" to which Jesus replied, "Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God?" Then He added, "Ye have made the commandment of God of none effect by your traditions," quoting from the prophet Isaiah concerning those whose worship is only from the mouth and lips, while their hearts are far from God (Isa. xxix, 13; Ezek. xxxiii, 31). Paul tells us that even the wisdom of words (he must mean the human wisdom of men's words) may make the cross of Christ of none effect (1 Cor. i, 17). So between mere outward form and the wisdom of man the gospel would seem to be greatly hindered, and yet our Lord is not discouraged (Isa. xlii, 4). In a lesson which we are soon to have we will hear Him say, "Let wheat and tares grow together till the harvest," but in verse 13 of this chapter He warns us in these words: "Every plant which my Heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up." Let us see to it that we are indeed "trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that He may be glorified" (Isa. lxi, 3).

I cannot help thinking that from such religious formalism and hypocrisy our Lord went away into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon to be refreshed by some real faith, for, knowing all things and all people, He knew what He would find where He was going, and we do not read of any other result of this visit except the healing of this woman's daughter. This incident is found only here and in Mark vii, where we read that He entered into a house and would have no man know it. That would lead us to think that He came aside, possibly for physical rest as well as the refreshment from the faith of a gentile. This woman, whose daughter was troubled by an unclean demon, having heard of Him, came and fell at His feet and besought Him to heal her daughter. Note that she heard of Him. The questions keep ever coming. Are any hearing of Him through me? Are my life and testimony all for Him? Might some others hear if I was willing to go or more self denying in order to help others to go? The apostles are again in evidence with their "send her away, for she crieth after us" (verse 23). It is so much easier to turn down the many appeals for help, just to be let alone. So few of us seem to learn to live wholly for others, for the good we can do rather than the good we can get. The Holy Spirit needs to have more full control of us.

She addressed Him as "O Lord, thou Son of David," but as the Son of David she, being a gentile, had no claim upon Him, and He answered her not a word. We must never tolerate a thought of any unkindness or even lack of consideration on the part of Jesus, not even when He addressed His own mother as He did in John ii, 4. He was never anything but love, and love is kind (1 Cor. xiii, 4). The most that we can ever say is, "Well, I do not understand." But we must implicitly trust Him. In this case He was no doubt preparing her for the blessing He was ready to bestow. He said to the disciples, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

Her next appeal is simply "Lord, help me," and now she gives Him His right place in relation to her, but He replied, "It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to dogs." This does seem to our ears almost too much to bear, but He will never try us too much (1 Cor. x, 13). He knew what He was doing, and it was all love, no matter how it looks to us. Listen to her reply: "Truth, Lord, yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' tables." The victory is hers. She has won; she gave Him His place as Lord, and now she takes hers, the lowest, a gentile dog. Now listen to Jesus: "O woman, great is thy faith. Be it unto thee even as thou wilt. For this saying go thy way. The devil is gone out of thy daughter" (verse 28; Mark vii, 29). She believed his word, returned home and found her daughter well.

There was a great realized need. Her daughter's trouble was her own. It was nothing foreign, nothing to which she could be in any degree indifferent. She knew she had come to one who could help her, and she would not let go. The lessons for us are easy. May we lay them to heart. He is always "this same Jesus." Compare this "great faith" with that of chapter viii, 10, and note that in each case it was the great faith of a gentile. Contrast the little faith of the disciples in Matt. vi, 30; viii, 26; xiv, 31; xvi, 8, and let us have faith in God, the faith that faints not, doubts not, wavers not, but clings believingly and expectantly (Matt. xxi, 21, 22). In order to ask in faith we must remember John xv, 7, and 1 John iii, 21, 22. So much is meant by abiding, keeping His commandments and with a clear conscience doing the things that are pleasing in His sight. Then we must remember also Jas. iv, 2, 3, lest we ask amiss.

MEXICO FACES BAD REBELLION

The Mayas Have Presented a Formidable Force.

ARE STRONGLY INTRENCHED

The Town of Citas Reported to Have Been Captured by Rebels With Heavy Loss of Life and the Destruction of Much Property—Government Is Rushing Heavy Forces of Troops to Scene of Uprising.

Merida, Mexico, June 10.—The first consignment of troops to arrive here from Vera Cruz are being rushed to the vicinity of Valladolid, where the Maya Indians are said to be well intrenched and ready to battle with the government forces.

Communication with the turbulent district is very difficult on account of the destruction of many miles of railroad and the cutting of the telegraph wires by the rebels. The railroad is in operation to Isamide, some distance this side of Valladolid. It is reported that the town of Citas has been captured by the Indians and that there was a heavy loss of life and much property destroyed. A number of renegade Mexicans, among them several who formerly held government positions in Quintana Roo territory, are directing the military movements of the insurgent forces, it is reported.

No direct communication has been received from General Bravo, commander of the Tenth military zone, with headquarters at Chan Santa Cruz, the old capital of the Maya tribe, since the recent outbreak occurred, but runners were dispatched with orders for him to move with his regiment of 1,000 men upon the Indians who are holding Valladolid. Whether General Bravo is penned in by the Indians and unable to respond to the order is not known here. No reports of the devastation of Henequin plantations by the rebels have been received at Merida. The first estimate that the Maya force at Valladolid and in that vicinity numbered more than 5,000 men is confirmed.

The military authorities here believe that the rebellion will be put down in short order, although it is admitted that the Mayas can divide into small bands and take refuge in their tropical fastnesses, where they can continue a guerilla warfare for some time. No news has been received from the one hundred or more Americans who are employed in the mahogany logging and chicle camps in the heart of the Maya country.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS

Diaz's Opponent and His Principal Supporters in Durango.

Saltillo, Mexico, June 10.—The political excitement in this part of Mexico over the arrest of Francisco Medero, candidate for president against Diaz, has been intensified by the arrest in Saltillo of a number of his leading supporters who are alleged to have participated in a political meeting. Many of Medero's followers belong to the wealthy class.

Tells His Troubles to Taft.

New York, June 10.—Heriberto Barron of 238 West Twenty-second street, who says he was driven out of Mexico by President Diaz because he was a candidate against Diaz at the election to be held on June 25, has written a letter to President Taft complaining that President Diaz is still trying to keep him from making a living and will not permit him to return to Mexico on a business trip.

Shuts Down on Campaign Oratory.

Monterey, Mexico, June 10.—Governor Jose Maria Mier has issued an order prohibiting public speaking in this state during the presidential campaign. Political meetings of every kind are also prohibited. This action is taken to prevent strife and lawless conduct, he says.

FIVE KILLED

When Fast Train Caught Funeral Party at a Crossing.

Haverstraw, N. Y., June 10.—Four persons were killed outright and a fifth was fatally injured here when a flying West Shore engine struck a funeral coach returning from the local cemetery.

The dead are: William Beebe of Haverstraw; Rev. A. Romath, pastor of the New City M. E. church; E. V. Seifert of New City, Mrs. E. V. Seifert of New City.

Mrs. Perry Kessler of Haverstraw was fatally injured and died later. The parties were on the way back from the funeral of Mrs. Seifert's father, George Kessler. The clergyman had had charge of the services at the grave.

Party Names Meaningless.

Philadelphia June 10.—In the course of his speech to the graduating class of Swarthmore college Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford Jr. university, declared that party names have lost their meaning. He said that Republican and Democrat are one and the same except in name, and the only straight ticket that could be voted is the one with the "crooked" names all scratched off.

THIS IS CERTAIN.

The Proof That Seymour Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

Mrs. S. A. Gibson, 306 E. Second street, Seymour, Ind., says: "I suffered for a long time from severe pains in the small of my back and I also had depressing headaches. I was nervous and when I arose in the morning, my whole body was lame. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I began their use, and a prompt and thorough cure was the result." (Statement given in 1906.)

A Lasting Effect.

On April 14, 1910, Mrs. Gibson was interviewed and she said: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I ever did. The cure effected by this remedy in my case has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

EDWARD A. REMY, P. M.

Saved from Awful Death.

How an appalling calamity in his family was prevented is told by A. D. McDonald, of Fayetteville, N. C. R. F. D. No. 8. "My sister had consumption," he writes, "she was very thin and pale, had no appetite and seemed to grow weaker every day, as all remedies failed, till Dr. King's New Discovery was tried, and so completely cured her that she has not been troubled with a cough since. It's the best medicine I ever saw or heard of." For coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, hemorrhage, all bronchial troubles, it has no equal. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Improvements.

Peter Nichter has just completed one of the most commodious and attractive concrete porches in the city at his residence at 113 S. Vine street. Mr. Nichter will also make other improvements which will make his residence very homelike. Vine street is also to be improved and graded at that place and a concrete curb and gutter constructed.

Wants to Help Some One.

For thirty years J. P. Boyer, of Fertile, Mo., needed help and couldn't find it. That's why he wants to help some one now. Suffering so long himself he feels for all distress from backache, nervousness, loss of appetite, lassitude and kidney disorders. He shows that Electric Bitters work wonders for such troubles. "Five bottles," he writes, "wholly cured me and now I am well and hearty." It's also positively guaranteed for liver trouble, dyspepsia, blood disorders, female complaint and malaria. Try them. 50c at Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Baseball.

The Crothersville baseball team and the Indianapolis press team will cross bats on the Crothersville diamond Sunday afternoon. Barry, who pitched for Greenwood recently in the fourteen inning tie game against Crothersville, will be in the box for the Indianapolis team. His work is of a very high order and the game Sunday is sure to be a good one.

Ends Winter's Troubles.

To many, winter is the season of trouble. The frost bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold sores, red and rough skins prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healed of burns, boils, piles, cuts, sores, eczema and sprains. Only 25c at Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

W. L. Johnson made a business trip to Cincinnati Thursday.

OFFICE ESTABLISHED.

New Light Company Will Begin to Make Contracts at Once.

C. E. Layton, secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Seymour Public-Service Company, has established an office at No. 8 North Chestnut street, which will be maintained until the plant is completed. When the company erects their plant arrangements will probably be made for the offices in the building.

The indemnity bond for $1,000 which was required by the franchise was signed by the officers of the company Thursday evening, and the final contracts for city lighting closed. The company will begin to enter into contracts with the citizens for lights and power at once, so that they may determine upon the size of the wires which will be installed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Black Cross Chivalry

Two knights for a lady's hand once sought,
While one was rich the other had naught,
The lady herself put them both to the test,
By asking what drink in the land was best,
To the one choosing only the BLACK CROSS BRAND,
She gave her true promise and also her hand.
